In point of strength, solidity and beauty it is considered by good judges to be the best work of the architect and proprietor, Mr. Triubie; and although he might have expedited the opening, he pre-ferred to have the work well done, even if a little time was lost by it. The decorations, rosnery, curtains and evnamental work are now progressing in the hands of such artists as Allegri, Calyo, Guidicini, Hawthorne, Aluns and Hoffman. VALUABLE HISTORICAL PORTRAIT OF CORNELIUS VALUABLE RISTORICAL FORTERIT OF CORNELIUS STEERWYCE, MAYOR OF NEW YORK.

This society heid their stated monthly meeting on the evening of election day when, not withstanding the interest felt in the result of the election, and the un'avorable state of the weather, the hall was crowded. We must add, in this place, that we are looking forward with unample degree of satisfaction to the completion of the new small degree of satisfaction to the completion of the new building, which will not only accommodate a much larg-or number of the members and their friends, but will admit of proper and thorough ventilation, so that one may be present and remain through the meeting without running the risk of asphyxia.

The ordinary business of the meeting having been transacted—reports, &c., which indicated a high degree The ordinary business of the meeting having been transacted—reports, &c., which indicated a high degree of presperity—the Librarian, in concluding his report of denations during the month, called the attention of the society to the portvait of Cornelis Sienwyck, presented by Mrs. Elizabeth Clark, through Mr. John Medulen, of the New York Sciety Library. Mr. Moore read a letter from the latter geniteman, giving a history of the discovery of the picture, and stated that Cornelis Steenwyck was a very important character in his day and generation having been Sciepen in 1658 and 1656, Burgomester in 1664, 1664, 1665, 1666, and Mayor in 1668, 1669, 1670, 1682 and 1683. He was one of the most intelligent and wealedy merchants of New Amsterdam. He came here trust in government employ ment, while young, and subsequently wont into business on his own account. He married a daughter of Lyshet tireversat, and lived and traded near the cornect of Whitehall and Bridge streets. He increased his business until his foreign connections in trade, especially with Holland, herame more extensive than those of any other merchant of his time. It is said that he was unanimously called on by the government and citizens, to proceed to Holland to solicit aid against the anticipated especialism which is 1664 transit rect the colony of New Amsterdam Otton in 1684 transit rect the colony of New Amsterdam to the luftsdieson of the English crown, and changed its name to New York. He did not go however, and changed its name to New York. He did not go however, the appears to have been prominent in the negotiations which accompanied the surrender to Nicholis.

Dr. Dr. Witz added a word to what had been said by the Irbarian in relating to Steenwyck to commemorate his relations with the early Dutch Church, of which he was a member and a benefactor. His name appears many times in the records of that venerable ecclesiastical body; and his widow married Dominic Henricus Selyus, (Domine Dutch, from that of the successor to Selyus, (Domine Dutos) to the MONEY MARKET.

SUNDAY, Nov. 9-6 P. M. The week just closed has been a very active and n Monday morning prices ruled at very low points and the bears had things all their own way. That appeared to be the lowest dip, and from that time here has been a rapid and steady improvement. Most of the stocks on the list have nearly recovered all they lost, and are now gradually working up to higher points. With these great changes in the ondition of the stock market there have not been corresponding changes in the money market. The banks have not changed their policy, and the contraction in discounts is going on vigorously. The supply of money on call is not at all abundant, and cans are effected with as much difficulty as at any previous period this year. The movements of specie have for some days past been decidedly more fa-vorable. The shipments have been much more limited than anticipated, and the receipts from various sources quite large. The banks will be able to show an increase in their reserve, compared with last week's returns. The deposits may show a further reduction, but the current must soon set in from the country. Last year about this time the lowest point both in discounts and deposits was reached, and a gradual expansion followed. It is not at all unlikely such may be the case this year. If so, we are at the bottom of the stock market for the present. About this time last year the shipments of specie fell off and the banks gradually increased their reserve. The stock market has evidently advanced more in anticipation of these favorable movements than from any direct or immediate cause. Speculators for a rise have made large purchases on time—their own option, thirty and sixty days—so se to carry them forward long enough to ensure a more liberal banking movement and an easier state of things in financial affairs at maturity. In so doing they have avoided every reasonable contingency, and placed themselves comparatively in a safe position. The bears, under any state of money matters, trust to the oberent weakness of all our incorporated railroad companies, and to the development of the elements of decay and dissolution which every one of them contains to a greater or less extent. The bears, under all phases of the market, steadily pursue one undeviating policy, and time, that great regulator and leveller of all things, is operating in their favor, while it is operating against their opponents. At present the tendency of prices is upward, and it is likely to continue for a time longer; but we have no faith in the value of these prominent speculative ailroad stocks, as investments, at prices considerably below those now current. The bulls and the bears may turn them about as they please, and outide speculators may be induced to operate in them for a rise, and they may for a time make money, but if they stick to them long enough, not only their profits, but a portion of the principal, will some day

The difficulties between the Reading Railroad Company and the coal transporters and shippers ave assumed a formidable magnitude. A telgraphic despach from Philadelphia, from an authentic source dated "4 o'clock, Saturday afternoon," announces that the entire body, of coal shipper had formally refused to pay their bills for tonnage for the week, and that the cars will be stopped on Monday morn ing-so that the tonnage of the road, which shows large decline for the past week, will in fact be but trifling for the next sixty days. The truth is, the coal business is gradually slipping away from the Reading road. The new outlets to New York have tapped its business, and the road now in a rapid state of completion and equipment for the spring trade, promise a large business for New York and the East. The North Pennsylvania road will be completed into the heart of the Lehigh Valley by the middle of January. The Scranton road, with a fine depot at Elizabethport, will be more fully equipped for the coal trade. The Lehigh Valley road, to which, it is said, Mr. Tucker, the late President of the Reading, will be called, is forming new coal connections preparatory to the spring business, and the Schuylkill Navigation Company. which this year shows an increase of business. while the Reading shows a loss, is preparing for a nore active opening of the spring campaign.

Chas. Miller & Co., who have been among the largest shippers from Richmond, and whose tonnage over the Reading is several hundred thousand tons per annum, on Friday last en-gaged two of the largest wharves of the Schwikill Navigation Company for the ensuing season, and a large body of influential coal men are arranging for new facilities. On the whole, New Yorkers have reason to be satisfied with this fight. The loss to the Reading will be their gain. In the active competition which will now spring up we look for lower tolls over the various lines, a living profit to the producer, and cheaper prices to the consumer. It is said that the wharves at Richmond are now over crowded with coal, so that the shippers can now find tonnage on the road for sixty days, without disadvantage to themselves or the public. In the neanwhile the question of a reduction of tolls from the present price to $1 50 per ton for the opening Reading must yield. Its supremacy is over, and the new outlets will now strive for the mastery in the business. Competition is the life of trade, and if the Reading makes less money it will remain in the

It is not probable that any of the lines in operation last year will do as well this. The Lebich Navigation and the Reading Railroad are not likely to reach their last year's tonnage, and though the Schuylkill Navigation shows a larger coal tonnage, the tolls being lower, the receipts, we understand, will be less.
